

BLACK QUEER CREATIVE SUMMIT

Executives

- Producers: Oversee the production process, managing finances, logistics, and ensuring the project is completed on time and within budget.
- Showrunners: Head writers and executive producers who oversee all aspects of a show's creative and operational direction.
- Publicists: Manage and craft the public image of individuals or projects, handling media relations and promoting content.
- Agents: Represent clients (actors, writers, directors, etc.) by negotiating contracts, securing job opportunities, and managing career development.
- Industry Professionals: Skilled individuals working in various behind-the-scenes roles in the entertainment industry, including technical, administrative, and creative positions.

Creators

- Filmmakers: Create films, overseeing all aspects of production, from writing and directing to managing the technical and financial elements.
- Directors: Responsible for translating a script into a visual story, guiding actors and the production team to bring the project to life.
- Writers: Create the scripts and storylines for films, television shows, or other media content.
- Photographers: Capture visual images for films, publicity, or promotional purposes, often influencing the aesthetic and tone of a project.
- Animators: Design and create moving images, either by hand or using computer software, for animated films, television shows, or visual effects.
- Video Editors: Cut, arrange, and enhance footage to create a finished product, working closely with directors to shape the final narrative.

Behind The Scenes

- Hair and Makeup Artists: Design and apply hairstyles, makeup, and prosthetics to enhance characters' looks for film or television productions.
- Wardrobe Stylists: Select and design clothing and costumes for actors, contributing to character development and visual storytelling.

On-Screen Talent

- Actors: Perform characters in front of the camera, embodying the roles scripted for them in films, television shows, or live performances.
- Personalities: Public figures, often with a strong media presence, who build a brand or persona and may appear in various entertainment or media outlets.
- Media Influencers: Individuals with a large online following who promote products, trends, or ideas to their audience, often partnering with brands for marketing.

Audio/Music Supervision

- Artist: A musician or performer who creates and presents music to the public, either as a solo act or as part of a group.
- Songwriters: Individuals who write the lyrics, melody, and structure of a song, crafting the musical foundation for artists to perform.
- Composers: Musicians who create original music, often for orchestras, films, television, or other specific projects, typically writing full scores.
- Music Editors: Work with raw audio recordings to refine, edit, and shape the final version of music for albums, films, or other media productions.
- Record Label Executives: Manage and oversee the business side of record labels, including signing artists, developing marketing strategies, and ensuring the financial success of music projects.